Pinot Noir Ried Graf Weingartl 2014

Ried

When the term “Ried” appears before a geographic designation on a label of Austrian wine, the grapes have come from a legally defined single vineyard site. According to the Austrian Wine Law, wines with a vineyard designation must bear the word “Ried” on the label before the name of the vineyard.

Site, Vineyard and Soil

Ried Graf Weingartl (sub-site of Ried Kräutergarten) in Oberwaltersdorf, deep alluvial soils covered by a heavy layer of black soil; subsoil of limestony gravel.

Description

Our single-vineyard Pinot Noir has a dark brick red colour with a broad meniscus and light garnet tones toward the edge. ‘Graf Weingartl’ offers Pinot power on the nose as we think it should be: Lots of ripe raspberries, wild strawberries, sous-bois, cedar and a salty whiff of pine. The palate adds both a mild herbal and a peppery component to the berry-driven character, accompanied by a firm acidity that is very slightly cushioned by the wine’s fruit. The arc of flavours on the palate develops into roasted coffee notes with a bit of caraway seed, which creates complexity. We love the long, red-fruity finish. Nonetheless, this Pinot Noir demands patience, and asks for a bit of time. It will bring you lots of joy if you store it in your cellar a bit, and open it a little before serving, but have it slightly chilled.

And a bit of information:

One could say that the Hartl estate was a ‘Graf-house’ (a noble house, Graf = earl), before Heinrich Hartl I married into it – although in truth, the owners’ family name was Graf. The parcel of land upon which our premier cru now stands has been planted to grape vines as far back as the Hartls can remember. And at some point, the site’s potential for Pinot Noir was discovered, to our great benefit today. The ‘Graf Weingartl’ represents the core of our estate and stands truly close to our hearts. A great deal of passion flows into this wine, which was first vinified as a single vineyard bottling in 2007.

WINE ENTHUSIAST

93 POINTS –03/2018, Pinot Noir Ried Graf Weingartl 2014

94 POINTS –09/2017, Pinot Noir Ried Graf Weingartl 2013

An earthy, oakleaf note signals a true expression of Pinot Noir. There is something sleek, fluid and authentic about this. The wine accents cherry and forest berry as much as the autumnal notions of spice, fallen leaves and earth. It's elegant and honest, with a firm yet relenting structure and lasting flavors. Anne Krebiehl, MW

92 POINTS Pinot Noir Graf Weingartl 2012

Medium ruby with purple highlights and a broad transparent rim. Ripe cherry fruit and dark berries are found over a background of delicate floral nuances reminiscent of rose petals. Sweet fruit is harmoniously framed in juicy acidity, minerals, and well-integrated tannins. Youthful red berries linger long on the finish of this wonderfully balanced wine.
